ASTOUNDING STORY OF SEAMAN

American Whaling Ship, Seized in Venezuelan Port, Crew Imprisoned

Kingstown, St. Vincent, May 5.—It may be that Captain Colin Stephenson and the crew of the American whaling ship Carrie D. Knowles, long since thought to have been lost at sea, are still alive in a Venezuelan prison. An American seaman named Payne, an escaped prisoner from Venezuela,

"LAY ON MACDUFF"

It is with pleasure we note the activity of our newly appointed dairy and food commissioner, Mr. Willard Hansen of Salt Lake City. Our B. & C. Butter and Cheese are made under the most sanitary conditions, and we invite the fullest inspection.

BLACKMAN & GRIFFIN CO.

has made his way to Kingstown, where he laid before the authorities an astounding story of the seizure of the Carrie D. Knowles at a Venezuelan port, where she arrived five years ago in distress and of the imprisonment of the crew. A speedy investigation will be made.

On January 27, 1904, the Carrie D. Knowles, sailed from Provincetown, Mass., on a whaling voyage. She was supposed to have been lost in a west Indian storm with all hands. Some of the men belonged in St. Vincent, and after all hope was given up of their return, their relatives put on mourning and the local insurance company eventually paid claims on the assumption that the sailors were dead.

Payne's story caused great excitement, not only because of the seriousness of the charges against the Venezuelan authorities, but because it added another to the many tales reaching St. Vincent of the high handed methods adopted by the Venezuelans under Castro.

Payne declared that the whaler had been disabled in a storm off the Venezuelan coast and had made port in distress. She was at once seized and the captain and crew were made prisoners. He states that all the men are alive but still closely confined.

The details of Payne's escape from prison are not known. It is possible, however, that he is one of the score or more prisoners who escaped from the penitentiary at Maracaibo, about two weeks ago.

Queen Wears Robe of Ox Hide.

The queen of Swaziland, in Africa, when last seen by white people, was clad in a regal robe of ox hide, rather the worse for wear. To this simple garment were added bangles for her wrists and ankles. She sat on the palace floor and took snuff continually, wrapping around her shoulders an opera cloak of bright green and purple, the diplomatic gift of an English nobleman.

Why the Kettle Sings.

Do you know why a kettle "sings" when the water is boiling? It's like this: When the water begins to get hot, little bubbles form at the bottom of the kettle and rise toward the top until they burst.

At first they burst only a little way from the bottom, but as the water gets hotter and hotter they rise higher and higher.

At last, when the water is boiling, they burst right on the surface—hundreds of them one right after another—and it is the noise of their continuous bursting which makes the sound we call "singing."

Discomfiting a Critic.

There is a story of Irving and of W. E. Henley, who had been treating his readers to some adverse criticism on the great actor's Mfabeth. At their first meeting afterward Irving fixed the critic with his "glittering eye." "I notice," he said, "that you do not approve of my conception of Mfabeth. Tell me now, for I should be interested to hear if you would play Mfabeth if you were called upon to present the character on the stage. What is your conception?" It is recorded that Henley was speechless.

Ageing Timber.

Timber is now seasoned electrically. It is placed in a solution of borax, soda and carbonate of soda, in a large tank connected with an electric current. The effect of the current is to make the sap rise to the top of the bath, while the solution enters the pores of the timber. The process lasts for seven or eight hours, and then the piece is dried. Timber may be seasoned in this way in a few days, and is equal to that which has been stored five years.

ROUND HOUSE AND MACHINE SHOPS ARE THREATENED WITH DESTRUCTION

Fire in Warehouse Containing Twenty Thousand Gallons of Oil Beyond All Control At Grand Junction—Cistern Containing Four Thousand Gallons of Gasoline An Awful Menace—Every Effort Made to Prevent Explosion—Oil Tank Explosion Seriously Injures Machinist

Grand Junction, May 5.—Ignited from a fire originating in a string of freight cars at three o'clock this afternoon, the fire in a warehouse in the Denver & Rio Grande yards here containing 20,000 gallons of crude oil is beyond control, and it is feared that the round house and machine shops that adjoin the burning building will be destroyed. The roundhouse has been emptied of engines and has caught fire several times, the flames being extinguished only with the greatest difficulty.

A cistern containing 4,000 gallons of gasoline and covered with a mound of earth is located but thirty feet from the blazing warehouse, and the firemen are working in constant fear of an explosion that will wreck all the buildings and scatter the flames in every direction.

No attempt is being made to extinguish the blazing oil tanks, but every effort is being made to prevent the ignition of the gasoline cistern.

M. M. Houchis, a machinist, who was adding the firemen was knocked down by the explosion of some of the larger oil tanks, which occurred at 6 o'clock and was overcome by smoke. He is in a serious condition. D. C. Clark, roundhouse foreman, was seriously injured by contact with a live wire and several firemen were overcome by the fumes.

The fire originated from a spark blown into a can of lumber. The damage to the warehouse will exceed $20,000.

New York, May 5.—With the arrival in this country of Patrick White a new contestant for Marathon honors will have to be counted in. Mr. White is a professional who hails from Ireland and his record is one of the best in the world. He has come to America with the avowed intention of carrying back to the Emerald Isle world Marathon honors.

REALLY IT WAS PRETTY TOUGH.

Most People Will Be Inclined to Agree with Apple Grower.

"Will somebody kindly step up and inform me if you can beat that," suggested Col. W. T. Seller.

Col. Seller had been telling his experience with certain apple pliffers out near his place on Eddy road.

Ever since apples got ripe this year on the colonel's place they have been carried away by watchful residents out that way. The colonel himself has been obliged to get along with the worms apples that others left behind.

A short time ago Seller decided to clear out a piece of land that included a number of apple trees. "People steal all the apples anyhow," he reflected. "I might as well remove the trees and the temptation along with them."

While he was out cutting down one of the trees, a woman hot footed across the lot with a basket on her arm. She evidently was coming to fill the basket, not knowing that any rights about the trees were being removed. When she saw the tree being removed she broke right forth and told the colonel a few things about vandalism that was enough to set a man thinking.

"Pretty tough," he says, "for a man to have his apples stolen all season and then to incur the ill will of the thieves because he isn't going to maintain the trees for any longer."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Human Nature's Weaknesses.

JAPANESE WARSHIP SENT TO BEHRRING SEA

Victoria, May 5.—Japanese warships are to be sent to Behring sea to protect the sealers from Yokohama, Tokio and other ports across the Pacific, which flock to Behring sea in growing numbers each year. This is the news from an authoritative source at Tokio. A letter received here says that he knew of the fact that the sealers are seized every year in and about the Behring sea, indicating that the government is considering proposals to send warships there during the sealing season for the protection of the sealers. This appears a somewhat dangerous proceeding, likely to involve the risk of international trouble, and many prominent officials are of this opinion. The request for the sending of Japanese warships is being made by the sealing interests.

REALIZES LIFE IS UNCERTAIN.

Something Happened to the Man Who Followed Precedent.

"No, I'm not going to commit suicide because I have a broken nose," said the man with the strips of court plaster across his nasal organ. "But I'll tell you what I am going to do after this. I'm not going to believe there's anything in luck any more, and that things in this life are as uncertain as going out to milk a cow in the dark. You may find the cow, or you may find yourself alongside of a mule."

"Something must have happened?" was queried.

Yes, something has, and maybe I'll feel better to get it out of my mind. Six months ago a friend of mine was in Boston. He was walking along the street behind a lady when he noticed that one of her shoes was untied. He overtook her, and, raising his hat, informed her of the fact. She not only thanked him in the sweetest manner, but took his address, and what do you suppose followed?"

"She sent him a Teddy bear."

"No, she didn't," she sent him a check for $20,000, and he's just gone into the shoe business."

"Well," "Well, I was in New York last week, and I found myself following a lady on the street. I am just as good-looking and courteous and chivalric as my friend. A gust of wind took the lady's hat off, and all her false hair with it. I overtook her, raised my hat and expressed my sympathy that she was baldheaded. She took her property from my hands, and then handed off the umbrella she carried and broke my nose. No smiles, no sweetness, no check for $20,000 or any other old amount. I was entitled to it just as much as my friend, and really more than he was, and yet he's hustling in the shoe trade, while I am hanging around the country with a broken nose, and the doctors say I will never be handsome again."

Oyster Society.

It is but some time ago that a good joke is made about an oyster. Edmund Yates, however, in his "Recollections and Experiences," relates one. "I was walking with him one evening from the club," writes Yates, "and passing a fish shop in New street, he noticed two different tubs of oysters, one marked 'Is a dozen,' and the other 'Is 3d a dozen.' 'How they must hate each other!' said Thackeray."

NEW PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL NOW PENDING

Washington, May 5.—The new Philippine tariff bill, which will be a supplementary measure to the Payne tariff bill, will be reported to the house tomorrow. The ways and means committee today agreed to the measure as re-drafted and introduced by the chairman, Mr. Payne. The principal change made in the original measure affects the steel and oil schedules.

Petroleum and its products are placed on the free list, to which hides also

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

That chronic Bright's Disease is now being cured by treatment that reduces inflammation in the kidneys is beginning to be generally known.

We copy the following from the San Francisco Bulletin, June 23d, 1908:

"The recovery is reported of Mr. Z. Lawton, of 264 Fifth Avenue, San Francisco. The case is especially interesting, due to the fact that books declare chronic Bright's Disease incurable and five city physicians had passed on and diagnosed the case. The usual symptoms found in extreme cases were reported—excessive enlarged heart and towards the last the patient could only sleep sitting up, and for six weeks he slept in a chair. Lawton had a cousin, Mrs. W. E. Hoover of Auburn, who also had an advanced case of Bright's Disease. She had been tapped three times when she heard of Fulton's renal compound and made a fine recovery. This interested Lawton in the treatment and it resulted in his recovery also. He is a Mason, member of Excelsior Lodge, and many members will recollect his serious predicament and that they thought they would be called on to pass him over."

Parties desiring to know more of this treatment can get full literature by addressing the John L. Fulton Company, 5910 San Pablo Avenue, Oakland, Cal.

Fulton's Renal Compound can be had in your city of your agent WM. DRIVER & SON DRUG CO.

We desire every patient to write us if he is not getting the usual improvement by the third week.

are added. Light steel rails for tramways are provided with a lower duty than was contained in the original bill and a lower rate is placed on sugar-making machinery which was assessed a duty equal to that on other machinery.

HIS IMPRESSION ALL WRONG.

Gatemans Had Woven Romance Where Romance Was Not.

A charming young girl in a delightful spring costume presented herself at the platform gate of a railway station and proceeded to place the man in charge. "Will you please let me through?" she said, appealingly. "Can't do it, miss; it's against the rule."

"But I want to meet him when he arrives. He will be so upset if I am not on the platform to meet him."

The man hesitated. "Please," she insisted, gazing at him with tear-dimmed eyes.

"Well, I'll risk it," said the gateman, and he let her through.

"I daresay she's only been married a little while, and her husband's coming back for the first time," he reflected.

"Or, maybe, it's her lover she's expecting, for she looks too young and childish to be married."

Meanwhile the radiant young creature stood tapping her foot impatiently, waiting for the train to arrive.

Presently it steamed in. The girl ran alongside and a porter handed out a miserable little specimen of a pug dog, which she took in her arms and covered with kisses. As she passed out of the gate, with the animal in her fond embrace, she gave the gateman a bewitching smile.

"Well, there!" he soliloquized. "And I was fool enough to weave romances about her. I oughtn't to be here. My proper place is the lunatic asylum."

ARM IS LONGER THAN THE LEG.

Or It Should Be If the Person Is Well Formed.

There are men whose arms when they walk are like a couple of excited pendulums, trying to emulate the stride of the leg, the right arm swinging in unison with the movement of the left leg, and the left arm keeping time with the right leg. The military man is taught not to swing his arms; the civilian swings expansively, often covering a bigger radius than that covered by his legs. When a man swings his arms excessively he appears to be paddling along. When a man doesn't swing his arms at all he seems to be advancing automatically. He is altogether unbecoming.

The Gorilla de Luxe has arms seven inches longer than his legs. Can any reader tell instantly, without using a tape measure, which is the longer, his arm or his leg? Not one! The universal reply will be—the leg. All wrong. The arm of a well-formed person, man or woman, measured from the pit, should be three-quarters of an inch longer than the leg, measured from the crotch. The runner usually carries his arm bent at the elbow. Why? The best runners are pigeon-toed. Why? Most athletes set in their toes. Why?

SHALL IT BE "BUNK" OR "BUNC?"

The Former the Northern, the Latter the Southern Spelling.

"It never occurred to me that there could be any two ways of spelling the word 'bunk,'" said the scholarly appearing person who was studying the sporting section of the newspaper.

"But I happened to pick up a Memphis newspaper the other day and as a head to a speech made by commissioner Loomis in Tokyo recently I read: 'Loomis Hands Out the Bunc.'"

"Now, without endeavoring to go into the merits of the case so put I want to say only that the headline meant that Mr. Loomis was accused of soft-soaping the Japanese he addressed. The only other authority for the spelling of the word comes from the sporting cartoonists, whose work I study carefully. They are unanimous in spelling it 'bunk.'"

"It appears to me that the southern version is based on a belief that the word is a diminutive of 'buncombe.' The northern spelling may be due to the belief that a person who may be bunked is a person of sleepy or dopy nature, who might as well be lying in a bunk, wrapped in slumber. Therefore a person who is bunked he is rendered sleepy. That is merely conjecture."

Special Cars for Immigrants.

In conformity with the desire of the Russian imperial diploma the ministry of ways of communication has decided to have special cars built for the transportation of Siberian immigrants. To this end it is proposed that 10,000,000 rubles (ruble equals 51.5 cents) be assigned next year.

WILL CELEBRATE MINNESOTA DAY AT SEATTLE

STARTED WITH PUP

AND COLORED WOMAN HAD ACQUIRED COMPETENCE.

Showing What Industry and an Eye to Business Can Do—Booker Washington's Comments and Advice on the Subject.

Some years ago there was a negro conference at Tuskegee, Ala., the site of Booker T. Washington's famous institute, and one of the most prominent speakers was Mrs. Lucy Nelson of Dadeville, Ala. This woman was an extremely black African, but she was neatly dressed—had passed, indeed, the "sunbonnet stage," as Mr. Washington calls those of his people just budding into a more ambitious and broader existence. Under the cross-examination of Mr. Washington the woman related a most interesting experience—an experience that should be an inspiration to the whole colored race.

"Do the people in your community own homes, Mrs. Nelson?" asked Booker T. Washington.

"I think they're fixin' to own 'em, sah."

"But do they own them?"

"A heap of times you can't just tell, sah. But they's holdin' 'em down."

"Do you own your home?"

"Yes, sah, I do," proudly. "And I can tell you jest how I got it. I swapped a puppy dog for it."

"Huh?" said Mr. Washington, expressively.

"Yes, sah," the woman persisted. "I mean jest what I says."

"Tell us about it."

"Well, it was this way. When I started, I didn't have nothing at all but just a little yaller puppy dog. I took the dog over to my brother-in-law's. He had eight little bits of pigs, oh, jest so, and I swapped the puppy with him for one of the pigs. It was such a little pig that it didn't look like it would live, but I nursed it good, and I prayed to the Lord to make that little pig come for'ard to do me good, and the pig lived and grew. The first year I turned her out, and when she came back in the fall she brought me seven little pigs with her. That was my start. I've never had to buy any meat oranges. This winter I've killed three hogs, and I've got another at home now ready to kill. I've got 40 acres of land now, all paid for, and a house, and it all come from that one little puppy."

"Do you hear that?" exclaimed Mr. Washington, "you men? Some of you'd better go back home and swap your dogs for pigs!"—New York Times.

FOR CANDIED ORANGE PEEL.

Delicacy That May Very Easily Be Made at Home.

This is so nice to use with mince meat or in fruit puddings, and it can be made at home so reasonably that it will pay the housewife if she has time to prepare it now. Cut oranges in half and scoop out all the pulp, or if the rinds of peeled oranges are to be used, keep in as good shape as possible. Put the rinds into a basin, cover with lightly salted water, and let them soak for a week. At the end of that time drain and put into a stew pan containing a thin sirup made with two pounds of sugar to every two quarts of water. Boil half an hour. In another stew pan have a sirup made from two pounds of sugar and a cup of water, and cook over the fire until a thick sirup. Put the rinds into this thick sirup and cook until the sugar candies on them. Take out, put on a sieve laid on a platter to save all the sirup that might drip, and dry in a coolish oven. When quite dry put in wide mouthed bottles or glass cans and fasten securely.

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY.

Ogden People Are Doing All They Can For Fellow Sufferers.

Ogden testimony has been published to prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to others in Ogden who suffer from kidney trouble. Last night a sufferer doubt that the cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills are thorough and lasting, we produce confirmed proof—statements from Ogden people saying that the cures they told of years ago were permanent. Here's an Ogden case:

Thos. W. Wootton, 732 Barlow Lane, Ogden, Utah, says: "For a year or more my back was very lame and sore and pains through my kidneys were so severe that I was hardly able to regain an erect position after stooping. In the morning when I arose the pains would be so acute that I would hardly be able to move. At last I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box from Badson's Pharmacy. They promptly eradicated the trouble." (From a statement given July 20, 1906.)

Cured to Stay Cured.

On the 21st of September, 1907, Mr. Wootton confirmed his former statement, saying: "The cure Doan's Kidney Pills affected has proved permanent and I heartily recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney complaint."
